Woodholme Manor LLC at 101 Woodholme Avenue was constructed in 1896, according to the MIHP form for the Mudge-Brager-Weinhouse House, MIHP #BA-2414, prepared by the Baltimore County Planning Commission in 1989. The building was built on a twenty-five-acre parcel that had once been part of the Woodholme Estate owned by the Councilman Family. The Woodholme Manor LLC Building remains an excellent example of the Tudor Revival style, with a stone first story and stucco and half-timbered second story. There is one exterior chimney. Many of the original windows remain in place. The property was owned by Mr. Brager in 1960. The Mudge-Brager-Weinhouses House is not individually eligible, but is a contributing resource to the larger Woodholme Avenue Historic District. See DOE form for MIHP #BA-3052.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Weinhouse dwelling is a large Tudor Revival house with stucco over stone, with some elements of half-timbering. The layout is asymmetrical and there are three bays projecting from the main block to produce octagonal rooms inside. The house is gable roofed and has a small stone, unsheltered entrance porch. The Tudor theme is more pronounced inside, with an oak-paneled foyer and Tudor-arched doorways. The fittings stem from the age of craftsmanship. The foyer floors are a close-grained pine said to be no longer obtainable. There is one fireplace surround formed by a large carved stone lintel salvaged from some Medieval building. The fireplace opening in the foyer is framed by the large flat orange bricks much used in Prairie-style houses. The present decor is a mixture of traditional and bold contemporary. The house is certainly the one shown in the 1910 Maryland Geological Survey county topo map and very likely the one shown in the Bromley atlas of 1898. It was probably constructed in the building season of 1896 to 1897.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The present Weinhouse home has been associated with a maximum of four families over its approximately 90-years of existence. Its first two families were prominent in the business world of downtown Baltimore. The House apparently dates from some point between 1896 and 1898; it is certainly indicated on the 1910 MGS Topo map, and definitely found in the 1911 Tax Ledger.

In May 1896, James B. Councilman and other family members sold 10.65 acres by bond of conveyance to Edmund Tileston Mudge for $2,955. (1) The price paid suggests unimproved suburban land. The property was on the fringe of the large Councilman farm called Woodholme, an estate assembled about 1850 by John T. Councilman. (2)

The original tractnames here were "Simkin's Repose", "Addition to Simkin's Repose", and "Ashman's Delight." (3) In May 1898, Mr. Mudge received a deed to the same property from James B. Councilman and wife. The name Woodholme Avenue was used in that document. (4) The remaining Woodholme estate was large enough to serve as the site of the Woodholme Country Club, established in 1926. (5)

The 1898 Bromley atlas showed what is most likely the existing house, 1400 feet west of Reisterstown Road, marked as property of E. T. Mudge. (6) The Mudge tracts were a family colony, with the main home of the cluster called "Oakwood," a place with an access drive from Reisterstown Road.

In 1903, E. Tileston Mudge conveyed his 10.65-acre parcel "for love and affection" to his son Arthur Phillips Mudge. (7) The family was in the wholesale paper business, operating under the name of Dobler & Mudge, and E. Tileston Mudge appears in the 1896 Polk city directory as a member of the firm with a home at Pikesville and an office at 113 Hopkins Place. (8)

Arthur P. Mudge appeared in the 1906 Polk directory with the profession of clerk, his home at Pikesville. (9) By the time of the 1910 Polk directory, the younger Mudge was a member of the firm, still living at Pikesville. (10)

At the time the Beckleysville paper mill burned, the county weekly paper noted that all the mill's production had been purchased by Dobler and Mudge. (11) The company's full-page advertisement in the 1906 city directory stated, "All the paper used in this directory was furnished by Baltimore's Greatest Paper House." (12)

Edward Tileston Mudge died on January 7, 1926, at his Pikesville residence, appointing son Arthur P. Mudge executor and heir to the family share of the business of Dobler & Mudge. (13) The county paper reported that Mr. Mudge was 31 years of age and had been senior partner for 50 years, ab and had lived at Oakwood. He was buried at nearby Druid Ridge Cemetery. In addition to his son, he was survived by three sisters. (14)

In spite of having deeded the Woodholme Avenue tract to his son, the land and three suburban houses were all carried in E. T. Mudge's tax account in 1911, 1918, and 1923. The Woodholme Avenue house was assessed at $7,000 in 1911. (15) It was carried as Dwelling #2 in 1918, and measured 45 by 52 feet, two stories, assessed value, $9,360. (16)

By 1923, the house was assessed at $10,000, a considerable value for the times. (17) When corrections and updates were made in 1926 to the basic 1923 tax ledger, the account of the elder Mudge showed that 4.35 acres and the $10,000 house had passed to a new owner identified as "Brager." (18) In point of fact, Arthur P. Mudge had sold the 4.35 acres on June 24, 1924, to A. Stanley Brager and his wife Reada L. Brager for an estimated $28,500, judging from the number of U.S. tax transfer stamps on the deed. (19) Arthur P. Mudge took over the original family house as revealed in the tax ledgers. The Mudge Paper Company still exists in 1989, but "Oakwood" would have been overrun by the I-695 project some time prior to its opening in 1962. (20)

The new owner, A. Stanley Brager was a partner in a prominent downtown store that took up much of the block bounded by Eutaw and Saratoga Streets. The company was listed in the 1896 Polk directory as "Albert A. Brager, fancy goods," its owner living at 1702 Madison Avenue. (21)

By 1906, it was the Albert A. Brager Department Store, with its owner living at 1739 Eutaw Place. (22)

The 1926 Polk directory showed that the store was called "Brager of Baltimore" and the partners were Albert A. Brager and A. Stanley Brager. The same directory showed that A. Stanley Brager lived at "The Willows, Woodholme Avenue, Pikesville," where his three-digit telephone number was Pikesville 245. (23) The corrections made in 1925 to the basic 1923 tax ledger showed that the Bragers promptly put in a $1,000 "Add to house." (24) A separate entry showed that Mrs. Brager owned a "1923 Packard Touring" worth $300. (25)

Mrs. Brager lived until December 24, 1947, and the Jeffersonian reported her death but included no biography. (26) A. Stanley Brager held on to the property and was listed as a widower when he sold in 1963 to Morton and Gilda Abrahams. (27) The Abrahams sold to the present owners in 1974. It was during Mr. Brager's ownership that the Baltimore Beltway was constructed south of the house below the crest of the hill.

Mr. Brager died in October 1968, and his obituary stated that he had been taken into the firm as a partner by his father Albert A. Brager in 1907. The store had gone in for lively publicity; not relying on printed advertising, they put on parades and events:

The Brager department store once advertised a white sale by painting an elephant with white paint.

A. Stanley Brager, according to the Sun, was "one of the first persons in Baltimore to own an automobile", starting with a Pope Toledo, switching to a Stanley Steamer, then a Pierce-Arrow, and then the Packard Touring Car found the the tax records. In the early 1920s, Mr. Brager became president of the store. His father lived until 1936, but the family sold the store in 1927, and A. Stanley Brager joined the Stein Brothers and Boyce brokerage firm. (28) His father spent his remaining years in charitable activities. (29)

In the Mudge and Brager period, the neighborhood had been fairly rural, although served by a trolley car. The tax ledgers show that the elder Mudge kept cattle, horses, and chickens, and had 13 acres of tillable land, 12 of pasture, and 3 of orchard, and 8 of lawn. (30) A stable came with the house when acquired by Mr. Brager in 1924. The property was well beyond the village of Pikesville, not entirely farm country, but much more rural than the planned villages such as Roland Park or Guilford where such spacious houses might enjoy only one acre of elbow room and offer little in the way of a vista.

Such mini-estates form part of a pattern of Baltimore's mercantile elite establishing rural retreats, not especially for farming, beyond the confines of the city--a pattern detected as early as 1760 by Charles G. Steffen in his recent study of gentlemen's estates as the forerunner of suburbanization. (31)
